The man who tries to build up a business by destroying that of another will never get very far in the world. Help your fellow man in the quiet battle of life.

Speak no ill of your neighbor. Cinch slander the moment it starts. What disgrace is forced to the lips of another must ultimately return and he who forces must himself drink.

Two Children Cremated And Home Destroyed By Fire

Two children were burned to death and two others, with their mother, were injured in a fire which was followed by a gas explosion last night about 10 o'clock at the home of John Kolozzei in South Donora. The house was wrecked by the explosion, causing a loss of $3,000. The fire was discovered about 10 o'clock and passengers on jitney busses coming and going to Donora could see the blaze across the river.

The family consisting of the father and mother and five children were asleep when the fire broke out and were thrown from their beds by the explosion. Mrs. Kolozzei leaped from the second story window with a two months old baby in her arms. She had two ribs broken and was removed this morning to a hospital in Pittsburgh. Barbara Kolozzei, aged 9 years and Seria Kilozzei, aged 6, were sleeping in a room directly over the kitchen, where the fire first started. They attempted to reach a window, but the explosion caused the floor to collapse, throwing them into the flames and causing their death. Their bodies were removed to the Rabe undertaking rooms in Donora. John Kolozzei, aged 12 and Jacob Kolozzei, aged 4, were injured in making their escape and in their attempt to help rescue the other children.

Police Court News

Despite the fact that there was no pay on Saturday at the local mills, a fair sized audience greeted Burgess Dunlap at the regular Monday morning police court, and for over an hour, justice was meted out to the various offenders. Joseph Tincko, John Jurnick and Mike Bolack were the first trio called and were charged with fighting Sunday night. Tincko and Juranick were pretty badly used up in the melee from the personal appearances this morning. As Juranick had a good sized doctor bill to pay, he was allowed his freedom, while Tincko, who it is claimed wielded a knife and was fined $7.50.

C. J. Rose was back for the second time within a week on a charge of drunkenness and paid a fine of $4.00. Lewis Klewo had some trouble with his employer Saturday night and was locked up. He was discharged. J. M. Worley of Grant avenue, was arrested on information of his wife, who claimed he attempted to abuse her and the children. He was discharged at the hearing this morning, but given fair warning that his next appearance would mean a trip to Greensburg.

Mike Cominchock, a hard working man, got drunk and paid a fine of $4.00. Bert Mack was back again and unless he gets $7.00, he will have to work on the streets for five days. Andy Sycolia was the last prisoner. He walked to the police station himself and claimed sickness. He was discharged.

Big Relief Fund

Nearly every Italo-Amerocan within a radius of 75 miles of Pittsburgh has joined the members of societies in a big collossal effort to raise the biggest relief fund of its kind that has ever been made from Italo-Americans in the state for the benefit of the Italian Red Cross. The consolidation of forces thus accomplished cannot but exert an overwhelming influence favoring a most successful campaign.

Yesterday the Italian society at 200 Third street, had a special meeting for the purpose of choosing an executive committee for a big dance to be held at the Italian hall, Oct. 15.

E. Guatteri was unanimously chosen as president, Thomas Parrinelli as treasurer and E. Giovagnorio as secretary. For sub committees were chosen Messrs. L. Caruso, E. Capuno, L. Imburfia, J. Conti and some others. Louis Caruso has been in charge of the arrangements, and much credit is due him for the excellent work he has done for this worthy cause.

Autos Wrecked

Autoists who traveled over the Charleroi-Bentleyville road Saturday night had narow escapes when they hit a portion of the road which had just recently been oiled. The rain Saturday evening made the highway almost impassible and no less than four machines were thrown over an embankment at a point along the road three miles from Charleroi. Dr. F. C. Stahlman of Charleroi, was among the victims and when his machine went over the embankment, he was thrown under the car and badly bruised.

Lloyd Mehaffey of Washington, who happened along the road in his touring car shortly afterwards skidded and he, too, was thrown over the embankment and was injured. Two other machines met the same fate and it was necessary to place signs at each end of the road warning autoists of the danger. A number of machines from this city that traveled over the road came to town covered with oil and will have to undergo a general cleaning before they can be put back in service.

Scholastics Organize

The Scholastic football team, lightweight champions of the Monongahela valley have organized for the season and expect to have one of the strongest teams in this section on the gridiron. Heinie Speigelberg, the former star of the High school team, has been elected captain and has issued a call for all members to report every night this week for practice at the Page park. They expect to open the season on the home grounds next Saturday and will attempt to go through the entire season without a defeat. The All Stars will probably not organize this season and this will be the only team to represent the town. The team is composed of former stars of the High school and is considered one of the fastest organizations ever represented by this city.

OLD FRIENDS REAL FRIENDS

A number of the friends of John E. Shields, candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff, have come to his aid in the assaults that have been made on him by his enemies. His position on the employment of union labor is clearly set forth by the close workmen of New Kensington who know his record. The letter issued by Shields in which the New Kensington workmen are quoted folows:

To the Workmen of Westmoreland County:—

New Kensington, Sept. 18, 1915.

To the Voters of Westmoreland Co.:

Gentlemen:—

There has lately come to my notice, scurrilous reports in regard to J. E. Shields employing non union labor in the erection of several residences that were built in New Kensington, Pa.

I have this to say in regard to the report, that it is not true.

I have known Mr. Shields intimately for 26 years; helped to erect the first house he owned; built one for him since; was on three others that were built for him and they were all erected by union workmen. At that time I was treasurer of the Carpenters' Union and was in position to know Mr. Shields was working at the carpenter trade at that time himself and belonged to the union.

Signed,
W. J. LAUGHLIN.

In regard to J. E. Shields employing non-union labor, I, W. E. Mitchell was president of the Painters Union from the time of its inception until I started in business and can state that during all that time his (J. E. Shields) painting was all done by Union Labor.

Signed,
W. E. MITCHELL.

I, the undersigned, was the Brick Contractor on the last three houses built by J. E. Shields and will say every man on the job was a member of the L. U. No. 27 of Pa., B. & M. I. U.

Signed.
J. E. PRESSLER.

I, John J. Ossler, Secretary of the Painters Union of New Kensington, Pa., beg to state that I have done all the papering for J. E. Shields and know there were never any non-union labor employed in his property in this city.

Signed,
JOHN J. OSSLER.

P. S.—In regard to the statement charging me with employing non-union electricians and plumbers at Gary, Indiana, I will say that in Gary, there are three recognized bodies of Plumbers and Electricians. The unfair, the fair and the Union.

The Plumbing was all done by E. J. Pripps, of Washington street, Gary, who conducted a union shop and employed union plumbers.

The carpenter work was all done by C. G. McDowell of Tenth Place. West Gary, who was a union man and employed all union labor.

The electric wiring was done by Mr. Wach of what is known there as an open shop.

The tinning contract was let to Mr. Neff who conducts a union shop on Washington street, Gary.

The eleventh hour dodgers circulated against me by the treacherous Feehan and his kind to injure me are beneath the notice of any self respecting citizen.

Voters help me win over these traitors and their treacherous and unfair methods.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN E. SHIELDS.

Enters Ministry

After a service of three and a half years with the office force of the Pittsburgh Steel company, Mr. C. N. McCandless has tendered his resignation to take effect October first. Mr. McCandless leaves Monessen to take up the ministry. For several years he has devoted much time to theological study and has qualified himself to take a charge. He will attend the annual conference at Mt. Pleasant tomorrow. He expects to be assigned a charge and will take up the work in earnest. Mr. McCandless during his stay here has made many friends who will wish him abundant succes in his chosen life work.

W. G. Muse Makes Final Statement To Voters

The primary election being near at hand, I want to say a last word to the voters of this section. Having been appointed by the court to fill out an unexpired term, I now come before you as a candidate for a full four year term as county commissioner.

Immediately after my appointment, a committee of your citizens called upon me to register a protest at the manner of construction of the Monessen-Pricedale road. This was one of my first duties after taking the oath of office. I found conditions even worse than represented by the committee. Carefully studying the specifications for the road, I found that the taxpayers were being fleesed by faulty construction. The work was not being done according to the specifications and cheaper material was being substituted.

This was my first fight as a commissioner. My object was to work with your committee to get a road that could be accepted. While much of the work had already been done, I urged that it be condemned and by heroic effort I succeeded in making the contractor tear up much of the foundation work and re-lay the brick.

Until completed this road received my personal attention, and while it is not what it should have been, it is the best that could be done after such a start.

My efforts for roads in this end of the county did not stop here. I immediately went after the connecting link through from Monessen to Greensburg and am pleased to report that this road is on the list for early improvement.

In every matter pertaining to the interests of the people of this end of the county and taxpayers at large, I have put forth my best efforts and I now ask to be judged by reasonable standards and if you have found me not wanting, I ask you to support me at the primaries tomorrow.

I have been a lifelong Republican and an engineer having spent many years in actual service and I believe I am fully competent to take care of the duties of the office to the fullest interest of all concerned.

Thanking you for past favors, I remain,
William G. Muse,
West Newton, Pa., Sept. 20, 1915.

BERKEY H. BOYD IN THE LEAD

So we learn by the forecasts from all sections of the county. And this is as it should be, since Mr. Boyd is worthy and in every way deserving of the office to which he aspires, that of County Commissioner on the Republican ticket. Boost him and vote for him next Tuesday. Note what other papers say about him:

"Berkey H. Boyd of Scottdale, who is a candidate for County Commissioner on the Republican ticket, looks like a winner. Mr. Boyd is competent and worthy and if nominated and elected, he will administer the affairs of the office in the interest of all the people. If you wish to place your vote where it counts most, vote for him."—Scottdale Independent. 1t

Barnum and Baileys Circus at Charleroi

Among the performers whose exploits will thrill and dumbfound spectators at the Barnum and Bailey circus which exhibit at Charleroi, Wednesday, Sept. 22nd, is Lupeta Perea, a newcomer to the world of American "white tops," from Mexico, fleeing gladly from the revolution and its political unrest. Her mother accompanies her with the remnants of a fortune accumulated in cattle-raising near Monterey and which became the prey of insurrectors.

The girl's wonderful agility asserted itself early in life. She was the marvel of her school girl friends in hazardous feats in mid air and amazed older beholders who witnessed her exploits. Then one day there came, during the fiesta days of December, a grand display in El Toreo, Mexico City's famous bull ring before President Madero and his dignataries. Senorita Perea's apparatus was stretched from barrier to barrier and the ovation she received from her aerial exhibition is still remembered in the capital. Her entrance into professionalism dates from her triumph upon that occasion. It was not long before her fame had spread all through the republic of Mexico. Her talents are not vested solely in her lithe and nimble body. When she isn't amazing, onlookers by her feats aloft in the "big top," she may generally be found ensconced in a corner of the circus "green room" with a pad and pencil, perpetuating the forms and faces of her associate performers. Clowns, equestrians, aerialists, acrobats, chariot drivers and all the other multifarious figures and features of the big show are being put in black and white. This little beauty of the circus, for she is a beautiful girl, has twelve different costumes which she carries with her despite the protests of the circus men. Then too, she has stunning street attire, and Senorita Perea has "off and on" the reputation of being the best dresesd girl of the circus.

PRUDISH PARENTS

There are certain stages in the life of every boy and girl when the confidence and advice of the father and mother may prove of inestimable value. If parents have not cultivated a relationship with their children which will enable them to discuss the problems which budding man and womanhood bring, they have fallen far short of doing their duty.

The evasions, lies and prudish attitude of parents has been responsible for mistakes which have resulted in agony of soul and body for innumerable growing boys and girls.

There is no period in life when children are more sensitive to influences for good and evil than in this formative stage. It is not fair to expect your children to come to you with those things which they are perfectly well aware you have avoided discussing in every possible way. They will accept and seek information from other sources if they cannot get it from their parents; the chances are a hundred to one that what they get will be misinformation and the injurious lies of companions with a distorted moral code.

If you do not feel competent to discuss these matters with your children in a manner that will give them a thorough and full understanding of the responsibilities and functions of manhood and womanhood, it is better to admit it and arrange to have your family physician talk the matter over with them fully.

This is far from being as satisfactory however, as being yourself fully informed regarding the problems which your children have to solve and encouraging them to come to you with the doubts and questions which they are certain to have.

Ignorance by no means implies innocence. Confidence and earnest high mindedness alone will beget their like from your children. If you never discuss the problems of sex which every healthy boy and girl has forced upon them by nature, you may be sure they will return the reticience in kind. They are certain to seek information somewhere. If you do not give them the truth frankly and willingly, they will accept what they can pick up from questionable sources.

There are Other Monessen People Similarly Situated

Can there be any stronger proof offered than the evidence of Monessen residents? After you have read the following, quietly answer the question.

Mrs. . Koerner, 119 Knox avenue, Monesen, says: "I had a bad fall which injured my back. I suffered from constant pains across my loins and in the morning I was always worse. If I stooped over, a sharp pain caught me and I couldn't straighten. The secretions from my kidneys were unnatural and caused me annoyance. I didn't rest well and rheumatic pains made it hard for me to get about. I was often so lame that I had to sit on cushions and I had puffy sacks beneath my eyes. I doctored and tried different medicines, but got no relief. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the irsch Drug Co. drove most of the trouble away. I take this medicine off and on as a kidney tonic and it keeps me in good health."

CHAPTER XLII.

The Torture Chamber.

As for the young American herself, she had remained these hours alone in the palace of the king.

The palace, as she now reflected, was more nearly deserted than ever she had seen it. The household staff seemed disorganized. Fright had caught hold of all. The most conflicting rumors went this way and that.

"I wonder," said Kitty Gray to herself after a time, as she sat alone—"I wonder!"

Now, what she wondered had to do with certain questions which she long had had in her own mind.

"'Cruciati cam'—did 'cam' mean 'camera'—'chamber' — torture chamber?'"

If so, where was that torture chamber? Was it under the battlements yonder, or here in the palace itself? Where had the old king concealed his wealth?

She rang the bell and summoned once more the woman of the palace who thus far had cared for her at the king's behest.

"Margot," said she, "talk to me. I have traveled far and am weary. I am distressed—nervous perhaps. Talk to me."

"We are all distressed, excellency," said the woman. "We know not what there may be yonder. Perhaps this moment the two kingdoms may be at war. But what can I do to make your excellency more comfortable?"

She was willing enough to curry favor with a favorite of the king.

"Tell me Margot," demanded Kitty Gray, "about this country here. I am a stranger from a far country, and I know very little of this land and of its customs. Is it an old land, this of Gretzhoffen, Margot?"

"More immemorially old, your excellency, than most people have ever dreamed of. The first kings of Gretzhoffen date back so far in history that almost they merge into myths. The oldest kingdoms of Europe are not so old as this little one."

"Does the history of this country date back so far as the middle ages?"

"Oh, easily. We are very old," smiled Margot.

"Those also were times of war and bloodshed, were they not? Why, Margot, in those days they tortured prisoners, did they not?"

"Not only prisoners, excellency, but many others. If a king wished news or money, if an official wished confession of a crime—if a bishop desired confession of faith from a heretic—the torture chamber was the place to get such results."

"But not here, Margot—surely not here?"

"These very walls saw it, excellency, yes!"

"But that was long ago—those places were all wiped out and forgotten ages since."

"Destroyed? Indeed, not. Do not the people of this country always preserve their monuments, their museums of weapons, their chambers of horrors? Do they not take a certain pride in that? Monarchs even of today know the secrets of the old torture chambers in this land, and perhaps in many another."

"I could not have believed it! And so there was such a place here, in this palace?"

"Surely. I can give warrant for every word I have told you, excellency. The tradition is that the old torture chamber of Gretzhoffen was over yonder—under the corner tower of the palace—where the embattlements ran in. There is a corridor which leads yonder, down below, into the vaults. I would not go there for all the world. Few of us know the way, indeed—I have never been there. We folk of Gretzhoffen palace—we are wise enough not to ask too many questions, or to learn too many truths. Besides, I should die with terror to think of what spirits must haunt such a place. But, excellency," she concluded, "let speak of more pleasant things."

"Would you take me yonder, Margot?" asked Kitty.

The woman crossed herself devoutly "Not on my life!" said she. "Never in the world! If it be true that the chambers are there, let others prove the truth. I do not know."

"It was but a fancy," said Kitty turning to her couch and feigning weariness. "I will call you, Margot."

Kitty listened until her footfalls had quite died away; then, swiftly, she engaged herself upon the errand which all this time she had been planning.

She stole from her own apartments into the hall, passed along it toward the farther corner where stood the tower, until she came to another stair. Arrived upon this floor, she found herself unnoticed—that part of the palace was deserted.

Trusting only to a general sense of direction, she passed on and down—finding her own way through the labyrinth of passages, until at length she had reached the subterranean vaults which lay beneath the main edifice of the palace building.

About her now lay dampness, silence. The gloom of it all weighed heavily upon even her stout soul, used as she was by this time to terrors. But still she pushed on, the little candle which she had brought with her lighting the gloom at least faintly. She could not tell now where she was. Only there came to her the vague conviction that if there were secrets in the palace this was the way to find them. Therefore she followed such passageways as opened from time to time ahead.

There were walls of rock now on each side of her, whether of heavy masonry or hewn granite she could not tell, her light flickered so faintly on them. But at length she found herself at the end of the winding passageway. A heavy door stood before her.

Kitty flashed her light this way and that to see if she could find trace of any other visitors. The dust of the floor lay unbroken. Dust, fine, impalpable, lay on the great metal latchet of the door itself. There was a lock, yes, a vast and cumbersome affair of iron. She tried it. It did not yield. Where then was the key, if there was one?

"Yonder at the Edge of the Neutral Lands, Men Are Fighting!"

With no special plan, she cast her light here and there along the wall. She found at last, near to the jamb of the heavy door, an iron prong projecting from the wall, on it a vast and rusty bit of iron—the key.

With all her strength she twisted the great key. At length she felt the lock turn, yield. One moment she halted, and then threw her weight against the door. It swung open, silently. She found herself within.

Had anyone, whether friend or foe, been near to Kitty Gray at that time, they would have heard her sudden scream of mortal terror—would have seen her fall and crumple, in a limp heap, on the floor.

Circulars Are Not Official

Circulars are being sent broadcast over the county signed by C. H. Holy, representing the Afro-American League, and I wish to make it known that to my knowledge there is no such league. The circular indicates that certain candidates have been endorsed for office which is misleading.

There is a league, however, formed the Afro-American Protective League with headquarters in Monessen, but no endorsement has been given to candidates. This league expects to endorse the three home candidates and stand by them but so far as other endorsements are concerned, none has yet been made. I wish to make this matter public so that the candidates will know that the colored people are standing as a unit for good government and the upbuilding of the race.

Alex Pangburn, Vice President
Afro-American Protective League.

Harry C. Wilson A Strong Candidate

His many friends are pleased to note the growing strength of Harry C. Wilson, a leading candidate for the office of County Treasurer at the coming primary on Sept. 21. Mr. Wilson was born and brought up in this vicinity and lived here twenty-one years, working about the mines. He is a son of the late Perry B. Wilson, who was a member of Co. K, 85th P. V. At the close of the Civil war in 1865, Mr. Wilson settled in this community and remained here as one of the best known and most highly respected citizens until his death two years ago. He, with his four sons, were all staunch Republicans.

For the past twenty years, Harry C. Wilson has been a resident of Avonmore, in the northern end of the county, being at first employed there in the tin plate mills and later engaging in the hardware, real estate and other businesses His nomination papers were signed by every Republican voter, without exception, in Avonmore, a compliment from his neighbors who know him best that is not often extended to any candidate.

Mr. Wilson, aside from being strong in all parts of the county, is unusually strong in the north, viz: in New Kensington, Vandergrift, Hyde Park, Avonmore, etc. This is a region of Westmoreland that furnishes more Republican voters than any other section of the same population in the county, yet it has scarcely ever been remembered in the distribution of offices in the past ten years.

Yet Scottdale, those who know him, feel confident, will not be behind these towns in their loyalty to Mr. Wilson. It is their hope that every voter will remember him on election day and that Scottdale people will take a just pride in the success of one of its own boys and help him to be elected County Treasurer. 1t adv.

Farewell Reception

Friday evening at the A. M. E. parsonage, Mrs. J. E. Morris and daughters entertained in honor of Miss Albertha Brooks, who leaves Monday for Wilberforce University, where she attended school last year, and will return again to complete her education. Miss Brooks is one of the model young girls of this community who has an ambition to accomplish something in life. She is the daughter of Mr. Brooks, who is engaged as the leading plumber for the Tri Cities Water company.

There were about sixty young people present from all along the valley and the evening was delightfully spent in innocent games and music, after which a light lunch was served, and all repaired to their homes, wishing Miss Brooks much success in her school work. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks are very grateful to Rev. and Mrs. Morris for the respect shown their daughter as well as the encouragement given her before leaving for school. This is the school for which the financial results of the service given at the Star theatre tomorrow is to benefit.

Superiors Win

The amateur championship of Monessen was decided Saturday afternoon when the Superiors defeated the Lyceum team by a score of 6 to 1 at Page park. The winners had easy sailing throughout the game, outhitting and outplaying the Lyceum bunch. Joe Guder started the trouble in the last inning when he lost the ball in the right field weeds for a home run.

Leonard kept the good work up when he came to bat in the third with two men on bases by knocking out a three bagger, scoring himself a minute later. The Superiors have won two games from the Lyceum this season and are now undisputed champions of Monessen and are ready to defend their title at any time.
